HIGHLIGHTS

- Ford Motor Company’s U.S. sales totaled 209,897 vehicles for August, a decline of 2.1 percent
- Fleet down 0.2 percent on sales of 45,830 vehicles
- August retail sales totaled 164,067 vehicles – down 2.7 percent compared to a year ago
- Ford F-Series sales totaled 77,007 trucks for August, a 15.0 percent gain. Demand remains strong for high trim-level Super Duty trucks, with Lariat, King Ranch and Platinum accounting for 53 percent of retail sales last month. This, together with demand for Raptor, translates into a $3,400 gain in F-Series average transaction pricing versus 2016 – now $45,600 per vehicle
- August marked the start of sales for the new 2018 Ford F-150. Initial sales are strong for high series trucks
- Ford Explorer and Expedition were up a combined 6.3 percent, at retail. Explorer retail sales were up 6.1 percent while Expedition saw a gain of 7.6 percent; in both cases, an overall decline is the result of fleet order timing. Approximately 35 percent of Explorer retail sales were comprised of high series Limited, Sport and Platinum models in August
- Lincoln Navigator retail sales increased 4.4 percent in August; overall Navigator sales declined due to fleet order timing of the vehicle

“We continue to see customers choosing high trim-level F-Series trucks for Super Duty and with new 2018 F-150 orders. We are seeing high demand overall for our F-Series lineup this year, outpacing full-size truck segment growth 2 to 1 with a 15 percent increase for August.”

Mark LaNeve, Ford vice president, U.S. Marketing, Sales and Service

KEY VEHICLES

Ford F-Series Super Duty

Customers continue to favor high series Super Duty pickups. Last month, average transaction pricing for Super Duty moved above $55,000 per truck – a $5,500 increase. This is $7,000 more than the average transaction pricing of the luxury segment, at $48,000.

2018 Ford F-150

Our new 2018 F-150 just went on sale. Order banks are showing 54 percent of customers requesting Lariat, King Ranch, Platinum and Limited series trucks, with 88 percent in SuperCrew and almost 60 percent equipped with our 3.5-liter EcoBoost® V6.

2018 Ford Explorer

Explorer retail sales rose 6.1 percent last month. We’re seeing continued growth, particularly in the larger east coast markets, with Boston sales increasing 10 percent, Philadelphia up 21 percent and a gain of 18 percent in the country’s largest SUV market – the New York area.

2018 Lincoln Navigator

Our all-new Lincoln Navigator arrives in dealerships later this year. Current orders are showing strong demand for our highest series Navigator, with more than 75 percent comprised of Black Label and Reserve – the two highest trim levels in the Lincoln lineup.
