"December capped off a record year for Ford brand SUVs, making it eight consecutive years of Ford brand sales leadership. F-Series had an unbelievable year as we sold nearly 900,000 pickups, with strong high-end truck demand as customers continue to opt for our latest technology and equipment packages."

– Mark LaNeve, Ford vice president, U.S. Marketing, Sales and Service

KEY VEHICLES

2018 Ford F-150

Demand for F-Series was strong all year, with customers requesting the newest technologies in our high-series trucks. High-series Super Duty and new 2018 F-150 trucks pushed overall F-Series ATPs to a new record level of $47,800 per truck, $3,400 higher than a year ago.

2018 Ford Edge

2017 Edge sales totaled 142,603 vehicles, representing a record year with expanding retail sales. In December, Edge posted the largest gain in the coastal western region of the country last month, with sales up 8 percent. Explorer sales gained 33.3 percent overall in December.

2018 Ford Expedition

Following its initial sales in November, 2018 Expedition is off to a strong start, with new models to retail customers turning in just 7 days, with our customers demanding a Platinum series mix of almost 50 percent. Overall Expedition sales totaled 5,458 for the month, as 2018 stock levels are built.

2018 Lincoln Navigator

Lincoln Navigator sales were up 30.1 percent last month. The start is very strong with new models to retail customers turning in just 6 days. Customers are seeking out our two highest trim levels, with over 75 percent of our sales mix comprised of Reserve and Black Label.
