The Entrex African American Market
Announces Convertible PIPE Terms for Interested Investors.

Boca Raton, FL. March, 1, 2021: The Entrex Capital Market (OTC: UNSS) (<https://Entrex.Market>) is pleased to announce that the UNSS Board of Directors has agreed to terms for interested investors in the majority owned Entrex African American Market.

“This has turned out to be the right time for this sector for both African American companies trying to access capital and investors interested in supporting the sector” said Stephen H. Watkins CEO of Entrex. “We believe there are substantial cash-flowing African American companies that need access to capital and deserve it. These companies represent the ‘feet on the street’ and are the employment and economic growth sector of our nation.”

Paul D. Landrew Chairman of Entrex/UNSS suggests; “The investors with whom we are working want both economic and social returns. They believe, as we do, that investing can serve more than just economic returns – but bring social improvement for impoverished and underserved sectors.”

“Some of the investors have expressed interest in being the face of the market – which could bring a fascinating opportunity to align Wall Street monies with leaders in the African American Community – we believe it could be a win-win for all” said Watkins. “The economic returns offer a simple interest on the Principal converting into UNSS stock at term – but also a dilutable percent of the Entrex African American Market which has a buy-back agreement for the 49% dilutable interests not owned by UNSS/Entrex (51% Non-Dilutable Interest owned by UNSS/Entrex).
